

SOUTH HALL COMPLEX

Brand New Facilities!

South Hall Complex comprises two halls that share a lobby and common spaces. South Hall Complex is due to open the Fall of 2010. It was created to offer a residential mentoring program for men on the campus of IWU. Through the mentoring program upper-class students living on the Westside of the building engage in intentional relationships with freshmen on the Eastside of the building. North Hall Complex, our sister hall was opened in the Fall of 2008 and has had a history of a successful mentoring program for freshmen women.

South Hall Complex is a three story building with two main wings, Eastside (freshmen) and Westside (upperclassmen). Each floor is divided into two smaller communities called a unit. At the end of the floor are a wellness room, study lounge, and a laundry facility. The general room layout of the South Hall Complex is two rooms adjoined by a bathroom. Each room has two or three residents living in it. The rooms also have a bed and desk for each resident as well as a dresser and large closet to share.

The lobby of South Hall Complex is very spacious and includes a fireplace, front desk, and plenty of lounging areas. Additional common spaces include a large loft, four season porch, computer lab, surround sound TV lounge, conference room, faculty office, chapel, and study room.

IWU is excited to announce the opening of the South Hall Complex Residence Hall which will house the new Male Freshmen Mentoring program in the Fall of 2010!

Forge New Traditions

South Hall offers an excellent opportunity for a man to truly leave his mark forever. Because SHC will be experiencing its first year next fall, annual traditions are yet to be solidified. You have a chance to help create new traditions that will be done year after year.

Culture

The South Hall Complex is a mentoring community in which students explore their true identity (masculinity, authenticity, faith, knowledge, spirit) bringing the adventure of the Kingdom of God into ordinary celebration of daily living. All Freshmen living on the Eastside enroll in the mentoring program. Freshmen are carefully paired with male upperclassmen students who are living on the Westside. Combined programming and experiences create an environment of rich community based upon intentional relationships and these shared experiences.

Experience it First

Because Fall of 2010 will be the first class of students to live in South Hall, they will have the chance to first experience all the hall provides. They will leave a legacy of "the founders of SHC", and they will be proud that embarked on that adventure into the unknown.
